Europe: Dr. Serge Jurasunas' astounding cancer results

GLOBAL OUTREACH — Europe's best-known holistic/naturopathic/integrative healer, Dr. Serge Jurasunas of Portugal, seated, C, photo at L, at the 2002 International Symposium on Reactive Oxygen and Nitrogen in St. Petersburg, Russia; at R, attending a seminar at the Pasteur Institute, France. Dr. Jurasunas recounts more than 30 years of breakthrough cancer therapies on 33,000 patients (see pages 14,16)

PORTUGAL — Europe's most innovative natural-therapies cancer specialist is a long way from finished but already he is piling up a success record against which Western oncological results pale by comparison.

Serge Jurasunas ND, 58, the gifted naturopathy/iridologist/homeopath/nutritional therapist/integrative healer, whose life has been dominated by seeking solutions to cancer, is reporting an impressive 40 percent five-year survival rate (Western oncology's golden standard for assessing "cures") in "advanced" cases — meaning malignancies with metastases.

And this figure — together with 70 percent in "non-advanced" cases — is based on a 33-year caseload estimated conservatively at 30,000 patients.

Additionally, Dr. Jurasunas, whose Portuguese company Natiris also makes available high-quality innovative nutritional products, told ICHF in April that 25 percent of advanced cases treated in 1990 are still alive "and are in consultation with me . . . I know some cancer patients treated 20 years ago who are still in good uses in virtually all his multifactorial natural and integrative protocols against cancer.

LISBON GET-TOGETHER — Dr. Serge Jurasunas, C, perhaps Europe's best-known holistic/integrative healer whose cancer cases now exceed 30,000, checks notes at a reception in Lisbon with, at L, former US Ambassador to Portugal Elizabeth Frawley Bagley, and, at R, famed healer Deepak Chopra of California. Dr. Jurasunas' books, products and treatment protocols are now receiving world-wide attention as he continues to prove that the natural therapy approach is the best one.

Anoxe, internationally available through Natiris, is made from "modified Japanese vegetables," soy, wheat germ, green tea and seeds, contains vitamins A, C and E, beta carotene, polyphenols, flavonoids, tannin, riboflavin, glutathione, catalase and superoxide dismutase (SOD) — and particularly reflects "a strong, SOD-like activity," he has stated.

But patients who come to the Lisbon consulting office of the much-honored healer may also receive "embryonic genetic therapy," treatment with the SGES (the "super energy stone" which, research suggests, emits far-infrared radiation of 4 to 14 microns' wavelength to remove toxic metals, inactivate cancer cells and to activate healthy ones), shark cartilage, a snake venom product, squalene, dandelion root, bamboo extract, "exogenous" nucleotides derived from nucleic acids, melatonin, "microbial therapy" for immune stimulation, a full range of vitamins/minerals, colon therapy for rebalancing "friendly" bacteria, coffee enemas, vital dietary modifications, and "live yeast cells."

The latter is in a product form ("Zell-oxygen") which Dr. Jurasunas has described as a "proprietary biological preparation made Strongly influenced by the late Dr. Bernard Jensen's long-time research into bowel cleansing and his own intimacy with iridology, Dr. Jurasunas perceives intestinal disturbances as a major role player in pathology in general and cancer in particular. health today."

Even so, the constantly-researching, French-born doctor, who helped pioneer iridology and high-resolution phase-contrast microscopy in Europe as overlapping vital elements of evaluation and diagnostics, had little interest in record-keeping during his first 10 years of treatments.

He was too busy developing therapies, writing papers and attending conferences while following up research leads to undertake the hum-drum mechanics of biostatistics, but adds that he now is fully cognizant of just how important data can be in an oncological world dominated by chemotherapy, radiation and surgery.

Influenced years ago by the late American holistic healer Bernard Jensen, with whom he trained at the latter's Hidden Valley Health Center, Dr. Jurasunas wandered into numerous research areas which led him to Japan for interest in germanium compounds, to South Africa for work with homeopathy and to Germany (studies with the late Otto Warburg and Joseph Deck) for further studies in iridology and development of "live yeast cells."

He is the developer of Anoxe, which he describes as a "relatively new compound containing a wide range of antioxidants and various food factors with numerous uses in cancer," and which he now from active enzyme yeast cells" and which he regards as a major detoxification technique which "promotes biological regeneration and detoxification."

Indeed, strongly influenced by Dr. Jensen's long-time research into bowel cleansing and his own intimacy with iridology, Dr. Jurasunas perceives intestinal disturbances as a major role player in pathology in general and cancer in particular.

No protocols in which detoxification is not a central concern will be successful, he believes. His iridology research has equipped him to detect such disturbances in the iris, often in advance of disease.

In Europe, he is well known for having conducted tens of thousands of experimental blood tests (live cell evaluation, clot retraction or "free radical footprint" analysis) with iridology findings, an area of research either ignored by or opposed by orthodox oncology.

Patients who consult with Dr. Jurasunas may also undergo SGES and "energy sand" baths, and receive intramuscular injections of glutathione and taurine.

Dr. Jurasunas was originally profiled in the ICHF in 1998 (II:2).

In a compilation of breast cancer cases submitted this year for general publication, Dr. Jurasunas states that:

"As the New Millennium began it was obvious that the usual approaches to breast cancer were mostly failing most of the time and that mammary malignancy is still the number-one killer of women. Hence, we are far from the optimism generated by institutionalized cancer research more than two decades ago when there were predictions that by the year 200 cancer would finally be conquered.

"More than any other expression of malignancy, breast cancer is an emotional disease, which for women is a terribly depressive condition which often demands mutilation, then aggressive treatment, a lengthy period of painful illness, a time of hope, then recurrence, and, ultimately, death."

His breast cancer approach will be aired at the Third Congress of the International Institute of Iridology this fall in Connecticut.

The author of books on germanium, iridology and cancer and who has received numerous awards and citations including those from the Order of Saint John of Jerusalem (Knights of Malta), with which he has long been affiliated, came to an interest in natural therapies and medicine early in life.

"Since childhood I was attracted to nature and at 12 years old I was tending my own organic garden," he told the ICHF.

"My father died of cancer and I remember the smell of so many medications in the home. Then my mother came down with heart disease and our family doctors kept prescribing drugs, one after the other, with ever-larger prescriptions. This led to my revulsion of orthodox medicine."

He later had a chance to meet Dr. Jensen, who originally introduced him to iridology, which became a lifelong obsession. When Jensen provided him with several books, including one on iridology, "this really changed my life. I decided by conviction to learn naturopathic medicine and first went to Montreal to start my studies," he said.

He began practicing naturopathy in Montreal and then practiced in Paris.

His move to Portugal was in 1971, and he has been here ever since. He and his wife Lucinda, a professor of French literature, established Natiris in 1972.

Since then Natiris, just as his practice, has grown and is international in outreach. His personal library consists of some 10,000 books, about 500 of them on cancer.

While cancer has dominated his practice he has also investigated many other areas of medicine, particularly Alzheimer's and the aging process.

Among many organizations, he is a member of the American Academy of Anti-Aging Medicine, the International Society of Orthomolecular Medicine, the New York Academy of Sciences, and has been a professor at the Capital University of Integrative Medicine in Washington DC.
